Summary of Experience

Francis' appreciation for the built environment has been greatly influenced and shaped by many places he has lived, both China and abroad. His multicultural upbringing has developed a unique international perspective in his career.

Being predominantly interested in the relationship that people establishes with different cities and cultural contexts, Francis has applied his understanding and responded to projects ranging from cultural landmarks to large-scale master planned development.

Currently he is actively engaging in the design team of an office-led mixed-use campus in Shenzhen. Other live projects include a large-scale mixed-use development and a retail led office campus in Shanghai.
