Summary of Experience

John joined the practice as a Part II Architectural Assistant in 2010. He was made an Associate in 2015 and a Senior Associate in 2019.

Through his particular interest in 3D design and the application of parametric and visualisation software, John has played a key part in a number of early stage designs and competitions. He was an integral part of the team working on The Macallan Distillery and Visitor Experience from the competition stage, through planning, detail design and construction leading the three-dimensional approach to modelling the building.

John is currently working on a major extension to the British Library which will provide new facilities to expand the Library's outreach, education, and exhibitions programmes; a flexible life science hub and Cross Rail 2 infrastructure.

John is a keen cyclist and has participated in a number of long-distance charity bike rides with the practice, including one from RSHP's London office to The Macallan in Scotland.
